In addition, the mutillas of the cigages were made of aluminum and cast iron due to the high pressure applied on both sides of the cylinder block. The forged rods would have bearings divided by fracture for the end of the cigã%eÅ± al and a Asi © trico that increased precise during assembly. The pistons would have internal refrigeration channels, while the drill oil drills sprinkled the lower part of the pistons. Coat the E20 engine had an aluminum alloy butt that was 17 mm more thin than the engine EJ20. In addition, the admission holes and the diameter of the admission vines are designed to create a swirl effect for the air as it entered the combustion of combustion. The E20 engine has double head cams (DOHC) for each cylinder bench that were operated by a chain and a gear with a speed reducer gear. The four vigules per cylinder (two of admission and two of escape) were operated by pivot type rockers. IHI Turbocompressor The E20 engines have IHI turbocharger with variable nozzle turbines (VNTS). In general, the VNT use móvil fins in the turbine housing to adjust the From air to the turbine and get an escape speed and comparison comprehensible in the entire range of revolutions of à ¢. To increase the torque at motor speeds less than 1800 rpm, the mouthpieces will close to narrow the air trajectory and increase Speed of air flow. However, at higher engine speeds, the pallets will be opened to reduce resistance to airflow and improve fuel consumption. Initially, the turbocharger is placed under the engine. For the Euro 6 EE20 engine, the turbocharger is understood to be relocated to the lower right of the engine. The maximum turbine speed for IHI turbochargers used in the E20 engine is understood to be 190,000 rpm. InjeccIã n³ and combustIã n³ Euro 4 and Euro 5 EE20 diesel engines have a rail injeccIã n³ system with eight-hole solenoid injectors that achieve a n³ injection pressure of 180 MPa³. However, for the Euro 6 E20 engine, the injection pressure³ not increased³ 200 MPa. For the E20 engine, the injectors were placed at an angle of almost 90 degrees to the cylinder and were 40-50 mm shorter than those used in four-cylinder diesel engines in the line. Euro 5 and Euro 6 EE20 engines are understood to have zero- Write bright plugs. EGR and DPF The E20 diesel engine has a water-cooled exhaust gas recirculation (EGR) system that recirculated exhaust gases³ intake to reduce combustion temperatures³ reduce NOx emissions. Euro 5 and Euro 6 EE20 engines have a closed loop diesel filter (dpf) part; Both the oxidation catalytic converter³ DPF were placed next to the turbocharger to use the heat from the exhaust air. Alternator The alternator for the diesel engine EE20 has a voltage load control system that, to reduce the alternator load on the engine, reduced the charging voltage when the vehicle was roli. Euro 6 changes the Euro 6 compliant diesel engine EE20 in the Subaru BS Outback in 2014 and the Subaru S.I.I Forester in 2015.
